S I R,

I RETURN your very curious Roll of Cookery, and I trust with some Interest, not full I confess nor legal, but the utmost which your Debtor, from the scantiness of his ability, can at present afford. Indeed, considering your respectable situation in life, and that diffusive sphere of knowledge and science in which you are acting, it must be exceedingly difficult for any one, how well furnished soever, completely to answer your just, or even most moderate demands. I intreat the favour of you, however, to accept for once this short payment in lieu of better, or at least as a public testimony of that profound regard wherewith I am,

S I R,

Your affectionate friend,

and most obliged servant,

WITHOUT beginning ab ovo on a subject so light (a matter of importance, however, to many a modern Catus or Amasinius), by investigating the origin of the Art of Cookery, and the nature of it as practised by the Antediluvians^a; without dilating on the several particulars concerning it afterwards

^a If, according to Petavius and Le Clerc, the world was created in autumn, when the fruits of the earth were both plentiful and in the highest perfection, the first man had little occasion for much culinary knowledge: roasting or boiling the cruder productions, with modes of preserving those which were better ripened, seem to be all that was necessary for him in the way of Cury. And even after he was displaced from Paradise, I conceive, as many others do, he was not permitted the use of animal food [Gen. i. 29.]; but that this was indulged to us, by an enlargement of our charter, after the Flood, Gen. ix. 3. But, without wading any further in the argument here, the reader is referred to Gen. ii. 8. seq. iii. 17. seq. 23.

amongst the Patriarchs, as found in the Bible ^b, I shall turn myself immediately, and without further preamble, to a few cursory observations respecting the Greeks, Romans, Britons, and those other nations, Saxons, Danes, and Normans, with whom the people of this nation are more closely connected.

The Greeks probably derived something of their skill from the East, (from the Lydians principally, whose cooks are much celebrated, ^c) and something from Egypt. A few hints concerning Cookery may be collected from Homer, Aristophanes, Aristotle, &c. but afterwards they possessed many authors on the subject, as may be seen in Athenæus ^d. And as Diætics were esteemed a branch of the study of medicine, as also they were afterwards ^e, so many of those authors were Physicians; and the Cook was undoubtedly a character of high reputation at Athens ^f.

^b Genesis xviii. xxvii. Though their best repasts, from the politeness of the times, were called by the simple names of Bread, or a Morsel of bread, yet they were not unacquainted with modes of dressing flesh, boiling, roasting, baking; nor with sauce, or seasoning, as salt and oil, and perhaps some aromatic herbs. As to the Romans ; they would of course borrow much of their culinary arts from the Greeks, though the Cook with them, we are told, was one of the lowest of their slaves ^g. In the latter times, however, they had many authors on the subject as well as the Greeks, and the practitioners were men of some science ^h, but, unhappily for us, their compositions are all lost except that which goes under the name of Apicius ; concerning which work and its author, the prevailing opinion now seems to be, that it was written about the time of Heliogabalus ⁱ, by one Cælius, (whether Aurelianus is not so certain) and that Apicius is only the title of it ^k. However, the compilation, though not in any great repute, has been several times published by learned men.

The Aborigines of Britain, to come nearer home, could have no great expertness in Cookery, as they had no oil, and we hear nothing of their butter. They used only sheep and oxen, eating neither hares, though so greatly esteemed at Rome, nor hens, nor geese, from a notion of superstition. Nor did they eat fish. There was little corn in the interior part of the island, but they lived on milk and flesh¹; though it is expressly asserted by Strabo that they had no cheese^m. The later Britons, however, well knew how to make the best use of the cow, since, as appears from the laws of Hoel Dda, A.D. 943, this animal was a creature so essential, so common and useful in Wales, as to be the standard in rating fines, &c.ⁿ.

Hengist, leader of the Saxons, made grand entertainments for king Vortigern^o, but no particulars have come down to us; and certainly little exquisite can be expected from a people then so extremely barbarous as not to be able either to read or write. ‘Barbari homines a septentrione, (they are the words of Dr. Lister) caseo et ferina subcruda victitantes, omnia condimenta adjectiva respuerunt’^p.

Some have fancied, that as the Danes imported the custom of hard and deep drinking, so they likewise introduced the practice of gormandizing, and that this word itself is derived from Gormund, the name of that Danish king whom Ælfred the Great persuaded to be christened, and called Æthelstane^q. Now 'tis certain that Hardicnut stands on record as an egregious glutton^r, but he is not particularly famous for being a curious Viander; 'tis true again, that the Danes in general indulged excessively in feasts and entertainments^s, but we have no reason to imagine any elegance of Cookery to have flourished amongst them. And though Guthrum, the Danish prince, is in some authors named Gormundus^t; yet this is not the right etymology of our English word Gormandize, since it is rather the French Gourmand, or the British Gormod^u. So that we have little to say as to the Danes.

I shall take the later English and the Normans together, on account of the intermixture of the two nations after the Conquest, since, as lord Lyttelton observes, the English accommodated themselves to the Norman manners, except in point of temperance in eating and drinking, and communicated to them their own habits of drunkenness and immoderate feasting^x. Erasmus also remarks, that the English in his time were attached to plentiful and splendid tables; and the same is observed by Harrison ^y. As to the Normans, both William I. and Rufus made grand entertainments ^z; the former was remarkable for an immense paunch, and withal was so exact, so nice and curious in his repasts ^a, that when his primæ favourite William Fitz-Osberne, who as steward of the household had the charge of the Cury, served him with the flesh of a crane scarcely half-roasted, he was so highly exasperated, that he lifted up his fist, and would have stricken him, had not Eudo, appointed Dapifer immediately after, warded off the blow ^b.

Dapifer, by which is usually understood steward of the king's household ^c, was a high officer amongst the Normans; and Larderarius was another, clergymen then often occupying this post, and sometimes made bishops from it^d. He was under the Dapifer, as was likewise the Cocus Dominicæ Coquinæ, concerning whom, his assistants and allowances, the Liber Niger may be consulted^e. It appears further from Fleta, that the chief cooks were often providers, as well as dressers, of victuals^f. But Magister Coquinæ, who was an esquire by office, seems to have had the care of pourveyance, A. D. 1340^g, and to have nearly corresponded with our clerk of the kitchen, having authority over the cooks^h. However, the Magnus Coquus, Coquorum Præpositus, Coquus Regius, and Grans Queux, were officers of considerable dignity in the palaces of princes; and the officers under them, according to Du Fresne, were in the French court A. D. 1385, much about the time that our Roll was made, ‘Queux, Aideurs, Asteurs, Paiges, Souffleurs, Enfants, Saussiers de Commun, Saussiers devers le Roy, Sommiers, Poulliers, Huiffiers’ⁱ.

In regard to religious houses, the Cooks of the greater foundations were officers of consequence, though under the Cellarer^k, and if he were not a monk, he nevertheless was to enjoy the portion of a monk^l. But it appears from Somner, that at Christ Church, Canterbury, the Lardyrer was the first or chief cook^m; and this officer, as we have seen, was often an ecclesiastic. However, the great Houses had Cooks of different ranksⁿ; and manors and churches^o were often given ad cibum and ad victum monachorum^p. A fishing at Lambeth was allotted to that purpose^q. But whether the Cooks were Monks or not, the Magistri Coquinæ, Kitcheners, of the monasteries, we may depend upon it, were always monks; and I think they were mostly ecclesiastics elsewhere: thus when Cardinal Otto, the Pope's legate, was at Oxford, A. 1238, and that memorable fray happened between his retinue and the students, the Magister Coquorum was the Legate's brother, and was there ^k In Somner, Ant. Cant. Append. p. 36. they are under the Magister Coquinæ, whose office it was to purvey; and there again the chief cooks are proveditors; different usages might prevail at different times and places. But what is remarkable, the Coquinarius, or Kitchener, which seems to answer to Magister Coquinæ, is placed before the Cellarer in Tanner's Notitia, p. xxx. but this may be accidental.

killed^r. The reason given in the author, why a person so nearly allied to the Great Man was assigned to the office, is this, ‘ Ne procuraretur aliquid venenorum, quod nimis [i. e. valde] timebat legatus;’ and it is certain that poisoning was but too much in vogue in these times, both amongst the Italians and the good people of this island^s; so that this was a post of signal trust and confidence. And indeed afterwards, a person was employed to taste, or take the assaie, as it was called^t, both of the messes and the water in the ewer^u, at great tables; but it may be doubted whether a particular person was appointed to this service, or it was a branch of the Sewer’s and cup-bearer’s duty, for I observe, the Sewer is sometimes called Præguflator^x, and the cup-bearer tastes the water elsewhere^y. The religious houses, and their presidents, the abbots and priors, had their days of Gala, as likewise their halls for strangers, whom, when persons of rank, they often entertained with splendour and magnificence. And as for the secular clergy, archbishops and bishops, their feasts, of which we have some upon record^z, were so superb, that they might vie either with the regal entertainments, or the pontifical suppers of ancient Rome (which became even proverbial^a), and certainly could not be dressed and set out without a large number of Cooks^b. In short, the satirists of the times before, and about the time of, the Reformation, are continually inveighing against the high-living of the bishops and clergy; indeed luxury was then carried to such an extravagant pitch amongst them, that archbishop Cranmer, A. 1541, found it necessary to bring the secular clergy under some reasonable regulation in regard to the furnishing of their tables, not excepting even his own^c.

After this historical deduction of the Ars coquinaria, which I have endeavoured to make as short as possible, it is time to say something of the Roll which is here given to the public, and the methods which the Editor has pursued in bringing it to light.

This vellum Roll contains 196 formulae, or recipes, and belonged once to the earl of Oxford^d. The late James West esquire bought it at the Earl's sale, when a part of his MSS were disposed of; and on the death of the gentleman last mentioned it came into the hands of my highly-esteemed friend, the present liberal and most communicative possessor. It is presumed to be one of the most ancient remains of the kind now in being, rising as high as the reign of king Richard II.^e. However, it is far the largest and most copious collection of any we have; I speak as to those times. To establish its authenticity, and even to stamp an additional value upon it, it is the identical Roll which was presented to queen Elizabeth, in the 28th year of her reign, by lord Stafford's heir, as appears from the following address, or inscription, at the end of it, in his own hand-writing: ‘ Antiquum hoc monumentum oblatum et misum est majestati vestrae vicesimo septimo die mensis Julij, anno regni vestri faelicissimi vicesimo viij ab

The general observations I have to make upon it are these: many articles, it seems, were in vogue in the fourteenth century, which are now in a manner obsolete, as cranes, curlews, herons, seals^g, porpoises, &c. and, on the contrary, we feed on sundry fowls which are not named either in the Roll, or the Editor's MS.^b as quails, rails, teal, woodcocks, snipes, &c. which can scarcely be numbered among the small birds mentioned 19. 62. 154.ⁱ So as to fish, many species appear at our tables which are not found in the Roll, trouts, flounders, herrings, &c.^k It were easy and obvious to dilate here on the variations of taste at different periods of time, and the reader would probably not dislike it; but so many other particulars demand our attention, that I shall content myself with observing in general, that whereas a very able Italian critic, Latinus Latinius, passed a sinister and unfavourable censure on certain seemingly strange medlies, disgusting and preposterous messes, which we meet with in Apicius; Dr. Lister very sensibly replies to his strictures on that head, ' That these messes are not immediately to be rejected, ' because they may be displeasing to some. Plutarch ' testifies, that the ancients disliked pepper and the ' four juice of lemons, insomuch that for a long time ' they only used these in their wardrobes for the sake ' of their agreeable scent, and yet they are the most ' wholesome of all fruits. The natives of the West ' Indies were no less averse to salt; and who would ' believe that hops should ever have a place in our ' common beverage¹, and that we should ever think ' of qualifying the sweetness of malt, through good ' housewifry, by mixing with it a substance so egregiously bitter? Most of the American fruits are exceedingly odoriferous, and therefore are very disgusting at first to us Europeans: on the contrary, our fruits appear insipid to them, for want of odour. There are a thousand instances of things, would we recollect them all, which though disagreeable to taste are commonly assumed into our viands; indeed, custom alone reconciles and adopts fauces which are even nauseous to the palate. Latinus Latinius therefore very rashly and absurdly blames Apicius, on account of certain preparations which to him, forsooth, were displeasing^m. In short it is a known maxim, that de gustibus non est disputandum;

And so Horace to the same purpose :

‘ Tres mihi convivæ prope dissentire videntur,
 ‘ Poscentes vario multum diversa palato.
 ‘ Quid dem? quid non dem? renuis tu quod jubet ‘ alter.
 ‘ Quod petis, id sane est invisum acidumque ‘ duobus.

Hor. II. Epist. ii.

And our Roll sufficiently verifies the old observation of Martial — ingeniosa gula est.

Our Cooks again had great regard to the eye, as well as the taste, in their compositions; flourishing and strewing are not only common, but even leaves of trees gilded, or silvered, are used for ornamenting messes, see N^o 175ⁿ. As to colours, which perhaps would chiefly take place in subtleties, blood boiled and fried (which seems to be something singular) was used for dying black, 13. 141. saffron for yel-

Alkenet is also used for colouring^p, and mulberries^q; amydon makes white; 68; and turnefole^r poronas there, but what this colour is the Editor professes not to know, unless it be intended for another kind of yellow, and we should read jornas, for jaulnas, orange-tawney. It was for the purpose of gratifying the sight that soiltees were introduced at the more solemn feasts. Rabelais has comfits of an hundred colours.

Cury, as was remarked above, was ever reckoned a branch of the Art Medical; and here I add, that the verb curare signifies equally to dress victuals^s, as to cure a distemper; that every body has heard of Doct̄or Diet, kitchen physick, &c. while a numerous band of medical authors have written de cibis et alimentis, and have always classed diet among the non-naturals; so they call them, but with what propriety they best know. At the end of the Editor’s MS. is written this rhyme, Explicit coquina que est optima medicina^x.

There is much relative to eatables in the Scholæ Salernitana; and we find it ordered, that a physician should over-see the young prince’s wet-nurse at every meal, to inspect her meat and drink^y.

But after all the avysement of physicians and philosophers, our processes do not appear by any means to be well calculated for the benefit of recipients, but rather inimical to them. Many of them are so highly seasoned, are such strange and heterogeneous compositions, meer olios and gallimawfreys, that they seem removed as far as possible from the intention of contributing to health; indeed the messes are so redundant and complex, that in regard to herbs, in N^o 6, no less than ten are used, where we should now be content with two or three: and so the fallad, N^o 76, consists of no less than 14 ingredients. The physicians appear only to have taken care that nothing directly noxious was suffered to enter the forms. However, in the Editor's MS. N^o 11, there is a prescription for making a colys, I presume a cullis, or invigorating broth; for which see Doddsley's Old Plays, vol. II. 124. vol. V. 148. vol. VI. 355. and the several plays mentioned in a note to the first mentioned passage in the Edit. 1780^z.

I observe further, in regard to this point, that the quantities of things are seldom specified^a, but are too much left to the taste and judgement of the cook, who, if he should happen to be rash and inconsiderate, or of a bad and undistinguishing taste, was capable of doing much harm to the guests, to invalids especially.

Though the cooks at Rome, as has been already noted, were amongst the lowest slaves, yet it was not so more anciently; Sarah and Rebecca cook, and so do Patroclus and Automedon in the ninth Iliad. It were to be wished indeed, that the Reader could be made acquainted with the names of our master-cooks, but it is not in the power of the Editor to gratify him in that; this, however, he may be assured of, that as the Art was of consequence in the reign of Richard, a prince renowned and celebrated in the Roll^b, for the splendor and elegance of his table, they must have been persons of no inconsiderable rank: the king's first and second cooks are now esquires by their office, and there is all the reason in the world to believe they were of equal dignity heretofore^c. To say a word of king Richard: he is said in the proeme to have been 'acōnted the best and ryallest vyānd [curioso in eating] of all estē kynges.' This, however, must rest upon the testimony of our cooks, since it does not appear otherwise by the suffrage of history, that he was particularly remarkable for his niceness and delicacy in eating, like Heliogabalus, whose favourite dishes are said to have been the tongues of peacocks and nightingales, and the brains of parrots and pheasants^d; or like Sept. Geta, who, according to Jul. Capitolinus^e, was so curious, so whimsical, as to order the dishes at his dinners to consist of things which all began with the same letters. Sardanapalus again, as we have it in Athenæus^f, gave a præmium to any one that invented and served him with some novel cate; and Sergius Orata built a house at the entrance of the Lucrine lake, purposely for the pleasure and convenience of eating the oysters perfectly fresh. Richard II. is certainly not represented in story as resembling any such epicures, or capriccioso's, as these^g. It may, however, be fairly presumed, that good living was not wanting among the luxuries of that effeminate and dissipated reign.

My next observation is, that the messes both in the Roll and the Editor's MS, are chiefly soups, potages, ragouts, hashes, and the like hotche-potches; entire joints of meat being never served, and animals, whether fish or fowl, seldom brought to table whole, but hacked and hewed, and cut in pieces or gobbets^h; the mortar also was in great request, some messes being actually denominated from it, as mortreaws, or morterehys, as in the Editor's MS. Now in this state of things, the general mode of eating must either have been with the spoon or the fingers; and this perhaps may have been the reason that spoons became an usual present from gossips to their god-children at christeningsⁱ; and that the bason and ewer, for washing before and after dinner, was introduced, whence the ewerer was a great officer^k, and the ewery is retained at Court to this day^l; we meet with damaske water after dinner^m, I presume, perfumed; and the words ewer, &c. plainly come from the Saxon eþe, or French eau, water.

Thus, to return, in that little anecdote relative to the Conqueror and William Fitz-Osbern, mentioned above, not the crane, but the flesh of the crane is said to have been under-roasted. Table, or case-knives, would be of little use at this timeⁿ, and the art of carving so perfectly useless, as to be almost unknown. In about a century afterwards, however, as appears from archbishop Neville's entertainment, many articles were served whole, and lord Wylloughby was the carver^o. So that carving began now to be practised, and the proper terms devised. Wynken de Worde printed a Book of Keruinge, A. 1508, wherein the said terms are registered ^p. ‘The use of forks at table, says Dr. Percy, did not prevail in England till the reign of James I. as we learn from a remarkable passage in Coryat ^q; the passage is indeed curious, but too long to be here transcribed, where brevity is so much in view; wherefore I shall only add, that forks are not now used in some parts of Spain ^r. But then it may be said, what becomes of the old English hospitality in this case, the roast-beef of Old England, so much talked of? I answer, these bulky and magnificent dishes must have been the product of later reigns, perhaps of queen Elizabeth’s time, since it is plain that in the days of Rich. II. our ancestors lived much after the French fashion. As to hospitality, the households of our Nobles were immense, officers, retainers, and servants, being entertained almost without number; but then, as appears from the Northumberland Book, and afterwards from the household establishment of the prince of Wales, A. 1610, the individuals, or at least small parties, had their quantum, or ordinary, served out, where any good oeconomy was kept, apart to themselves ^s. Again, we find in our Roll, that great quan-

ties of the respective viands of the hashes, were often made at once, as N^o 17, Take hennes or conynges. 24, Take bares. 29, Take pygges. And 31, Take gees, &c. So that hospitality and plentiful house-keeping could just as well be maintained this way, as by the other of cumbrous unwieldy messes, as much as a man could carry.

As the messes and sauces are so complex, and the ingredients consequently so various, it seems necessary that a word should be spoken concerning the principal of them, and such as are more frequently employed, before we pass to our method of proceeding in the publication.

Butter is little used. 'Tis first mentioned N^o 81, and occurs but rarely after^t; 'tis found but once in the Editor's MS, where it is written boter. The usual substitutes for it are oil-olive and lard; the latter is frequently called grees, or grece, or white-grece, as N^o 18. 193. Capons in Grease occur in Birch's Life of Henry prince of Wales, p. 459, 460. and see Lye in Jun. Etym. v. Grease. Bishop Patrick has a remarkable passage concerning this article: 'Though we read of cheese in Homer, Euripides, Theocritus, and others, yet they never mention butter: nor hath Aristotle a word of it, though he hath fundry observations about cheese: for butter

They had also Rhenish^e, and probably several other sorts. The vynegreke is among the sweet wines in a MS of Mr. Astle.

Rice. As this grain was but little, if at all, cultivated in England, it must have been brought from abroad. Whole or ground-rice enters into a large number of our compositions, and resmolle, N^o 96, is a direct preparation of it.

Alkenet. Anchusa is not only used for colouring, but also fried and yfondred, 62: yfondyt, 162. i. e. dissolved, or ground. 'Tis thought to be a species of the buglos.

Saffron. Saffrwm, Brit. whence it appears, that this name ran through most languages. Mr. Weever informs us, that this excellent drug was brought hither in the time of Edward III.^f and it may be true; but still no such quantity could be produced here in the next reign as to supply that very large consumption which we see made of it in our Roll, where it occurs not only as an ingredient in the processes, but also is used for colouring, for flourishing, or garnishing. It makes a yellow, N^o 68, and was imported from Egypt, or Cilicia, or other parts of the Levant, where the Turks call it Safran, from the Arabic Zapheran, whence the English, Italians, French, and Germans, have apparently borrowed their respective names of it. The Romans were well acquainted with the drug, but did not use it much in the kitchen ^s. Pere Calmet says, the Hebrews were acquainted with anise, ginger, saffron, but no other spices ^h.

Pynes. There is some difficulty in enucleating the meaning of this word, though it occurs so often. It is joined with dates, N^o 20. 52. with honey clarified, 63. with powder-fort, saffron, and salt, 161. with ground dates, raisins, good powder, and salt, 186. and lastly they are fried, 38. Now the dish here is morree, which in the Editor's MS. 37, is made of mulberries (and no doubt has its name from them), and yet there are no mulberries in our dish, but pynes, and therefore I suspect, that mulberries and pynes are the same, and indeed this fruit has some resemblance to a pyncone. I conceive pynnonade, the dish, N^o 51, to be so named from the pynes therein employed; and quære whether pyner mentioned along with powder-fort, saffron, and salt, N^o 155, as above in N^o 161, should not be read pynes. But, after all, we have cones brought hither from Italy full of nuts, or kernels, which upon roasting come out of their capsulæ, and are much eaten by the common people, and these perhaps may be the thing intended.

^h Calmet, Dict. v. Eating.

Honey was the great and universal sweetner in remote antiquity, and particularly in this island, where it was the chief constituent of mead and metbeglin. It is said, that at this day in Palestine they use honey in the greatest part of their ragoutsⁱ. Our cooks had a method of clarifying it, N^o 18. 41. which was done by putting it in a pot with whites of eggs and water, beating them well together; then setting it over the fire, and boiling it; and when it was ready to boil over to take it and cool it, N^o 59. This I presume is called clere honey, N^o 151. And, when honey was so much in use, it appears from Barnes that refining it was a trade of itself^k.

Sugar, or Sugar^l, was now beginning here to take place of honey; however, they are used together, N^o 67. Sugar came from the Indies, by way of Damascus and Aleppo, to Venice, Genoa, and Pisa, and from these last places to us^m. It is here not only frequently used, but was of various sorts, as cypre, N^o 41. 99. 120. named probably from the isle of Cyprus, whence it might either come directly to us, or where it had received some improvement by way of refining. There is mention of blanch-powder or white sugar, 132. They, however, were not the same, for see N^o 193. Sugar was clarified sometimes with wine ^a.

Spices. Species. They are mentioned in general N^o 133, and whole spices, 167, 168. but they are more commonly specified, and are indeed greatly used, though being imported from abroad, and from so far as Italy or the Levant (and even there must be dear), some may wonder at this: but it should be considered, that our Roll was chiefly compiled for the use of noble and princely tables; and the same may be said of the Editor's MS. The spices came from the same part of the world, and by the same route, as sugar did. The spicery was an ancient department at court, and had its proper officers.

As to the particular sorts, these are,

Cinamon. Canell. 14. 191. Canel, Editor's MS. 10. Kanell, ibid. 32. is the Italian Canella. See Chaucer. We have the flour or powder, N^o 20. 62. See Wiclif. It is not once mentioned in Apicius.

Macys, 14. 121. Editor's MS. 10. Maces, 134. Editor's MS. 27. They are used whole, N^o 158. and are always expressed plurally, though we now use the singular, mace. See Junii Etym.

Galyngal, 30. and elsewhere. Galangal, the long rooted cyperus°, is a warm cardiac and cephalic. It is used in powder, 30. 47. and was the chief ingredient in galentine, which, I think, took its name from it.

Pepper. It appears from Pliny that this pungent, warm seasoning, so much in esteem at Rome^p, came from the East Indies^q, and, as we may suppose, by way of Alexandria. We obtained it no doubt, in the 14th century, from the same quarter, though not exactly by the same route, but by Venice or Genoa. It is used both whole, N° 35, and in powder, N° 83. And long-pepper occurs, if we read the place rightly, in N° 191.

Ginger, gyngyn. 64. 136. alibi. Powder is used, 17. 20. alibi. and Rabelais IV. c. 59. the white

The caraway is once mentioned, N^o 53. and was an exotic from Caria, whence, according to Mr. Lye, it took its name: ‘funt femina, inquit, carri vel carrei, ‘sic dicti a Caria, ubi copiofiffimè nafcitur †.’

Powder-douce, which occurs fo often, has been thought by fome, who have juft peeped into our Roll, to be the fame as fugar, and only a different name for it; but they are plainly miftaken, as is evident from 47. 51. 164. 165. where they are mentioned together as different things. In fhort, I take powder-douce to be either powder of galyngal, for fee Editor’s MS II. 20. 24, or a compound made of fundry aromatic spices ground or beaten small, and kept always ready at hand in some proper receptacle. It is otherwise termed good powders, 83. 130. and in Editor's MS 17. 37. 38^u. or powder simply, N^o 169, 170. White powder-douce occurs N^o 51, which seems to be the same as blanch-powder, 132. 193. called blaynsbe powder, and bought ready prepared, in Northumb. Book, p. 19. It is sometimes used with powder-fort, 38. 156. for which see the next and last article.

Powder-fort, 10. 11. seems to be a mixture likewise of the warmer spices, pepper, ginger, &c. pulverized: hence we have powder-fort of gynger, other of canel, 14. It is called strong powder, 22. and perhaps may sometimes be intended by good powders. If you will suppose it to be kept ready prepared by the vender, it may be the powder-marchant, 113. 118. found joined in two places with powder-douce. This Speght says is what gingerbread is made of; but Skinner disapproves this explanation, yet, says Mr. Urry, gives none of his own.

After thus travelling through the most material and most used ingredients, the spykenard de spayn occurring only once, I shall beg leave to offer a few words on the nature, and in favour of the present publication, and the method employed in the prosecution of it.

The common language of the formula, though old and obsolete, as naturally may be expected from the age of the MS, has no other difficulty in it but what may easily be overcome by a small degree of practice and application^x: however, for the further illustration of this matter, and the satisfaction of the curious, a fac simile of one of the recipes is represented in the annexed plate. If here and there a hard and uncouth term or expression may occur, so as to stop or embarrass the less expert, pains have been taken to explain them, either in the annotations under the text, or in the Index and Glossary, for we have given it both titles, as intending it should answer the purpose of both^y. Now in forming this alphabet, as it would have been an endless thing to have recourse to all our glossaries, now so numerous, we have confined ourselves, except perhaps in some few instances, in which the authorities are always mentioned, to certain contemporary writers, such as the Editor's MS, of which we shall speak more particularly hereafter, Chaucer, and Wiclif; with whom we have associated Junius' Etymologicon Anglicanum.

^x Doing, hewing, hacking, grynding, kerving, &c. are easily understood.

^y By combining the Index and Glossary together, we have had an opportunity of elucidating some terms more at large than could conveniently be done in the notes. We have also cat the Index to the Roll, and that to the Editor's MS, into one alphabet; distinguishing, however, the latter from the former.

As

As the abbreviations of the Roll are here retained, in order to establish and confirm the age of it, it has been thought proper to adopt the types which our printer had projected for Domesday-Book, with which we find that our characters very nearly coincide.

The names of the dishes and fauces have occasioned the greatest perplexity. These are not only many in number, but are often so horrid and barbarous, to our ears at least, as to be enveloped in several instances in almost impenetrable obscurity. Bishop Godwin complains of this so long ago as 1616^z. The Contents prefixed will exhibit at once a most formidable list of these hideous names and titles, so that there is no need to report them here. A few of these terms the Editor humbly hopes he has happily enucleated, but still, notwithstanding all his labour and pains, the argument is in itself so abstruse at this distance of time, the helps so few, and his abilities in this line of knowledge and science so slender and confined, that he fears he has left the far greater part of the task for the more sagacious reader to supply: indeed, he has not the least doubt, but other gentlemen of curiosity in such matters (and this publication is intended for them alone) will be so happy as to clear up several difficulties, which appear now to him insuperable. It must be confessed again, that the Editor may probably have often failed in those very points, which he fancies and flatters himself to have elucidated, but this he is willing to leave to the candour of the public.

Now in regard to the helps I mentioned ; there is not much to be learnt from the Great Inthronization-feast of archbishop Robert Winchelsea, A. 1295, even if it were his ; but I rather think it belongs to archbishop William Warham, A. 1504^a. Some use, however, has been made of it.

Ralph Bourne was installed abbot of St. Augustine's, near Canterbury, A. 1309 ; and William Thorne has inserted a list of provisions bought for the feast, with their prices, in his Chronicle^b.

The Great Feast at the Inthronization of George Nevile archbishop of York, 6 Edward IV. is printed by Mr. Hearne^c, and has been of good service.

^a In Dr. Drake's edition of archbishop Parker, p. lxiii. it is given to archbishop Winchelsea : but see Mr. Battely's Append. to Cantuaria Sacra, p. 27. or the Archæologia, I. p. 330. and Leland's Collectanea, VI. p. 30. where it is again printed, and more at large, and ascribed to Warham.

^b Thorne, Chron. inter X Script. Col. 2010. or Lel. Collect. VI. p. 34. Ed. 1770.

^c Leland, Collect. VI. p. 2. See also Randle Holme, III. p. 77. Bishop Godwin de Præsul. p. 695. Ed. Richardson ; where there are some considerable variations in the messes or services, and he and the Roll in Leland will correct one another.

Elizabeth, queen of king Henry VII. was crowned A. 1487, and the messes at the dinner, in two courses, are registered in the late edition of Leland's Collectedness, A. 1770^d, and we have profited thereby.

The Lenten Inthronization-feast of archbishop William Warham, A. 1504^e, given us at large by Mr. Hearne^f, has been also consulted.

There is a large catalogue of viands in Rabelais, lib. iv. cap. 59. 60. And the English translation of Mr. Ozell affording little information, I had recourse to the French original, but not to much more advantage.

There is also a Royal Feast at the wedding of the earl of Devonshire, in the Harleian Misc. N^o 279, and it has not been neglected.

Randle Holme, in his multifarious Academy of Armory, has an alphabet of terms and dishes^g; but though I have pressed him into the service, he has not contributed much as to the more difficult points.

The Antiquarian Repertory, vol. II. p. 211, exhibits an entertainment of the mayor of Rochester, A. 1460; but there is little to be learned from thence. The present work was printed before N^o 31 of the Antiquarian Repertory, wherein some ancient recipes in Cookery are published, came to the Editor's hand.

I must not omit my acknowledgments to my learned friend the present dean of Carlisle, to whom I stand indebted for his useful notes on the Northumberland-Household Book, as also for the book itself.

Our chief assistance, however, has been drawn from a MS belonging to the Editor, denoted, when cited, by the signature MS. Ed. It is a vellum miscellany in small quarto, and the part respecting this subject consists of ninety-one English recipes (or nyms) in cookery. These are disposed into two parts, and are intitled, ‘Hic incipiunt uniuersa sericia tam de carnibus quam de pissibus.’^b The second part, relates to the dressing of fish, and other lenten fare, though forms are also there intermixed which properly belong to flesh-days. This leads me to observe, that both here, and in the Roll, messes are sometimes accommodated, by making the necessary alterations, both to flesh and fish-days.ⁱ Now, though the subjects of the MS are various, yet the hand-writing is uniform; and at the end of one of the tracts is added, ‘Explicit massa Compoti, Anno Dñi M^o CCC^{mo} octogesimo primo ipso die Felicis et Audacti.’^k i. e. 30 Aug. 1381, in the reign of Rich. II. The language and orthography accord perfectly well with this date, and the collection is consequently contemporary with our Roll, and was made chiefly, though not altogether, for the use of great tables, as appears from the surgeon, and the great quantity of venison therein prescribed for.

^b It is pissibus again in the title to the Second Part.

As this MS is so often referred to in the annotations, glossary, and even in this preface, and is a compilation of the same date, on the same subject, and in the same language, it has been thought advisable to print it, and subjoin it to the Roll; and the rather, because it really furnishes a considerable enlargement on the subject, and exhibits many forms unnoticed in the Roll.

To conclude this tedious preliminary detail, though unquestionably a most necessary part of his duty, the Editor can scarcely forbear laughing at himself, when he reflects on his past labours, and recollects those lines of the poet Martial;

Turpe est difficiles habere nugas, Et stultus labor est ineptiarum. II. 86.

and that possibly mesdames Carter and Raffald, with twenty others, might have far better acquitted themselves in the administration of this province, than he has done. He has this comfort and satisfaction, however, that he has done his best; and that some considerable names amongst the learned, Humelbergius, Torinus, Barthius, our countryman Dr. Lister, Almeloveen, and others, have bestowed no less pains in illustrating an author on the same subject, and scarcely of more importance, the Pseudo-Apicius.

INDEX AND GLOSSARY

T O

MR. BRANDER'S ROLL OF COOKERY.

The Numbers relate to the order of the Recipes.

N. B. Many words are now written as one, which formerly were divided, as al fo, up on, &c. Of these little notice is taken in the Index, but I mention it here once for all.

Our orthography was very fluctuating and uncertain at this time, as appears from the different modes of spelling the same words. v. To gedre; v. waythe; v. ynowkz; v. chargeant; v. corānte; &c.

A. abunds. a gode broth, 5. 26, al a nyzt, 192.

 Balles. 152. Balls or Pellets.
 Blank Deſire. 193, 194. bis. Lel. Coll. VI. p. 5. In N° 193, we meet with Blank deſne, but the Contents has Deſire, which is right, as appears from the ſequel. In MS. Ed. 29. it is Blank-Surry, and Sury, and Sure, and de Sur. II. 19. de Syry, 31.
 4 and

and here N^o 37, it is Defforre. and we have Samor in Sorry. Lel. Coll. VI. p. 17. Perches. ibid. Eels p. 28. 30. where it is a Potage. whence I conceive it either means de Surrey, i. e. Syria. v. Chaucer. v. Surrey. Or it may mean to be desired, as we have Horfys of Desyr. Lel. Coll. IV. p. 272. See N^o 63. and it is plainly written Desire in Godwin de Præful. p. 697. In this case, the others are all of them corruptions.

Blank Defforre. v. Blank Desire.

Blank Desne. v. Blank Desire.

Brawn of Capons. 20. 84. Flesh. Braun. MS. Ed. 29.

v. Chaucer. we now say, brawn of the arm, meaning the flesh. Hence brawn-fall'n. Old Plays, XI.

p. 85. Lylye's Euphues, p. 94. 142. Chaucer.

Brawn is now appropriated to these rolls which are made of Brawn or Boar, but it was not so anciently, since in N^o 32 we have Brawn of Swyne, which shews the word was common to other kinds

- of flesh as well as that of the Boar; and therefore I cannot agree with Dr. Wallis in deducing Brawn from Aprugna.
- Blank māng. 36. 192. Chaucer writes Blank manger. Blomanger. MS. Ed. 14. 33. 34. II. 7. N. B. a very different thing from what we make now under that name, and see Holme, III. p. 81.

It is surprising he did not see it must be Graspecia or Craspiscis, i. e. Gros or Crassus Piscis, any large fish; a common term in charters, which allow to religious houses or others the produce of the sea on their coasts. See Du Cange in vocibus. We do not use the Porpoise now, but both these and Seals occur in Archb. Nevill's Feast. See Rabelais, IV. c. 60. and I conceive that the Balanæ in Mr. Topham's MS. means the Porpus.

Q.

Quare. 5. It seems to mean to quarter, or to square, to cut to pieces however, and may be the same as to dyce. 10. 60. Dice at this time were very small: a large parcel of them were found under the floor of the hall of one of the Temples, about 1764, and were so minute as to have dropt at times through the chinks or joints of the boards. There were near 100 pair of ivory, scarce more than two thirds as large as our modern ones. The hall was built in the reign of Elizabeth. To quare is from the Fr. quarrer; and quayre or quaire, subst. in Chaucer, Skelton, p. 91. 103. is a book or pamphlet, from the paper being in the quarto form.
 See Annal. Dunstap. p. 215. Ames, Typ. Antiq.
 p. 3. 9. Hence our quire of paper. The later French wrote cabier, cayer, for I presume this may be the same word. Hence, kerve hem to dyce, into small squares, 12. Dyffis, MS. Ed. 15.

Y. is an usual prefix to adjectives and participles in our old authors. It came from the Saxons; hence ymynced, minced; yslyt, slit; &c. I is often substituted for it. V. Gloss. to Chaucer, and Lye in Jun. Etym. v. I.

It occurs perpetually for i, as ymynced, yslyt, &c. and so in MS. Editoris also.

Written z. 7. 18. alibi. used for gh, 72. MS. Ed. 33. Chaucer. v. Z. Hence ynouhz, 22. enough. So MS. Ed. passim. Quere if z is not meant in MSS for g or t final.

Dotted, y, after Saxon manner, in MS. Ed. as in Mr. Hearne's edition of Robt. of Gloucester.

Yeorve. 100, 101. cut in pieces. icorvin, 133. Gloss. to Chaucer. v. Icorvin, and Throtycorve.

Zelow. 194. yelow. MS. Ed. 30. yellow. A. S. zealupe and zelep.

Yolkes. 18. i. e. of eggs. Junius, v. Yelk.

Ygrond. v. Gronden.

Yleefshed. 18. cut it into slices. So, lefb it, 65. 67. leach is to slice, Holme III. p. 78. or it may mean to lay in the dish, 74. 81. or distribute, 85. 117.

Ynouhz. 22. ynowh, 23. 28. ynowh, 65. ynow. MS. Ed. 32. Enough. Chaucer has inough.

Yfer. 22. 61. id est ifere, together. Feer, a Companion. Wiclif, in Feer and Scukynge feer. Chaucer. v. Fere, and Yfere. Junius, v. Yfere.

Bishop Godwin renders it Vinum aromaticum. It was brought both at beginning of splendid entertainments, if Apicius is to be understood of it. Lib. I. c. 1. See Lister, ad loc. and in the middle before the second course; Lel. Coll. IV. p. 227. and at the end. It was in use at St. John's Coll. Cambr. 50 years ago, and brought in at Christmas at the close of dinner, as anciently most usually it was. It took its name from Hippocrates' sleeve, the bag or strainer, through which it was passed. Skinner, v. Claret; and Chaucer. or as Junius suggests, because strained juxta doctrinam Hippocratis. The Italians call it hipocrasso. It seems not to have differed much from Piment, or Pigment (for which see Chaucer) a rich spiced wine which was sold by Vintners about 1250. Mr. Topham's MS. Hippocras was both white and red. Rabelais, IV. c. 59. and I find it used for sauce to lampreys. Ibid. c. 60.

There

There is the proces at large for making ypocrasse in a MS. of my respectable Friend Thomas Astle, esq. p. 2. which we have thought proper to transcribe, as follows:

‘ To make Ypocrasse for lords with gynger, ‘ synamon, and graynes sugour, and turesoll: and ‘ for comyn pepull gynger canell, longe peper, and ‘ claryffied hony. Loke ye have feyre pewter
 ‘ basens to kepe in your pouders and your ypocrasse
 ‘ to ren ynne. and to vi basens ye muste have vi ‘ renners on a perche as ye may here see. and loke
 ‘ your poudurs and your gynger be redy and well
 ‘ paryd or hit be beton in to poud^r. Gynger colom‘ byne is the best gynger, mayken and balandyne
 ‘ be not so good nor holsom. . . . now thou knowist
 ‘ the propertees of Ypocras. Your poudurs must ‘ be made everyche by themselfe, and leid in a bled-
 ‘ der in store, hange sure your perche with baggs,
 ‘ and that no bagge twoyche other, but basen ‘ twoyche basen. The fyrst bagge of a galon, every ‘ on of the other a potell. Fyrst do in to a basen a ‘ galon or ij of redwyne, then put in your pouders,
 ‘ and do it in to the renners, and so in to the seconde ‘ bagge, then take a pece and assay it. And yef hit
 ‘ be eny thyng to stronge of gynger alay it withe ‘ synamon, and yef it be strong of synamon alay it ‘ withe sugour cute. And thus schall ye make per‘ fyte Ypocras. And loke your bagges be of boltell ‘ clothe, and the mouthes opyn, and let it ren in ‘ v or vi bagges on a perche, and under every bagge
 ‘ a clene basen. The draftes of the spies is good for ‘ sewies. Put your Ypocrase in to a stanche wessell, ‘ and bynde upon the mouthe a bleddur strongly,
 ‘ then serve forth the wassers and Ypocrasse.’

 A D V E R T I S E M E N T.

SINCE the foregoing sheets were printed off, the following very curious Rolls have happily fallen into the Editor's hand, by the favour of John Charles Brooke, Esq. Somerset Herald. They are extracted from a MS. belonging to the family of Nevile of Chevet, near Wakefield, com. Ebor. and thence copied, under the direction of the Rev. Richard Kay, D. D. Prebendary of Durham.

These Rolls are so intimately connected with our subject, as exhibiting the dishes of which our Roll of Cury teaches the dressing and preparation, that they must necessarily be deemed a proper appendix to it. They are moreover amusing, if not useful, in another respect; viz. as exhibiting the gradual prices of provisions, from the dates of our more ancient lists, and the time when these Rolls were composed, in the reign of Henry VIII. For the further illustration of this subject, an extract from the old Account-Book of Luton, 19 Hen. VIII. is super-added; where the prices of things in the South, at the same period, may be seen. And whoever pleases to go further into this matter of prices, may compare them with the particulars and expence of a dinner at Stationer's-Hall, A. D. 1556. which appeared in the St. James's Chronicle of April 22, 1780.

We cannot help thinking that, upon all accounts, the additions here presented to our friends must needs prove exceedingly acceptable to them.

ROLLS OF PROVISIONS,

With their PRICES, DISHES, &c.

The image shows a full-page view of marbled paper. The pattern is a complex, organic swirl of colors including yellow, green, black, white, and red. Large, irregular, greyish-blue spots are scattered throughout the design. In the center, there is a rectangular, aged, light brown paper label with handwritten text in cursive script.
